-	The response:
Meaning	Provides an interpretation of the critical lens that is faithful to the complexity of the statement and clearly establishes the criteria for analysis (nothing in this world can be achieved without giving up something in exchange). The response uses the criteria to make insightful analysis of Morrison's The Bluest Eye and Fitzgerald's The Great Gatsby (Rather than literally giving up a possession in exchange for their dreams, the characters in these novels give up a part of themselves).
Development	Develops ideas clearly and fully, making effective use of a wide range of relevant and specific evidence to support a discussion of Pecola's dream in The Bluest Eye (Due to the daily trauma Pecola faces from racism, unstable homelife, and self-hatred, she seeks to change herself) and of Gatsby's dream in The Great Gatsby (By centering his own life around his desire for the beautiful, rich Daisy Buchanan, Gatsby slowly loses his own ability to function in society). The response also integrates references to theme (This logic is a prominent theme), conflict (Through the internal struggles and suffering of their characters), and foreshadowing (This scene foreshadows the inevitable end for Percola) into the discussion.
Organization	Maintains the focus established by the critical lens on the steep price a person must sometimes pay to achieve a personal dream . The response exhibits a logical and coherent structure, first introducing the concept of pursuing one's dream, then for each work explaining the dream of the character and the inability of the character to attain the dream, following with a revelation of the consequences of such failure (Pecola finally obtains peace by losing herself to her demented mind and Gatsby ultimately loses his own individuality and ruins his life), and ending with a conclusion that refocuses on the critical lens. Transitions are skillfully used (From economic principles to the religious principles, Strongly supportive of this ideology, The one way).
Language Use	Is stylistically sophisticated, using language that is precise and engaging (Through his persistence in trying to attain the unattainable [Daisy's love], he literally brings about his own demise), with a notable sense of voice and awareness of audience and purpose (The price exacted, unfortunately, may be the loss of ourselves). The response varies structure and length of sentences to enhance meaning (When prayer doesn't work, she turns to disconnecting herself from her trauma).
Conventions	Demonstrates control of the conventions with essentially no errors, even with sophisticated language.
Conclusion: Over	rall, the response best fits the criteria for Level 6 in all qualities.

	The response:
Meaning	Provides an interpretation of the critical lens that is faithful to the complexity of the statement and clearly establishes the criteria for analysis (Essentially, any reward one receives or hasty decision one makes comes at a cost). The response uses the criteria to make insightful analysis of Beloved (His good deed came at the cost of years worth of labor-intensive activities) and Oedipus Tyrannus (His decision made in haste to kill Laius, brings about his downfall).
Development	Develops ideas clearly and fully, making effective use of a wide range of relevant and specific evidence to show how characters had to "pay a price" for their actions. The literary elements of setting (This setting serves to reveal the hardships that slaves Halle and Sethe endure) and characterization (Morrison characterizes Sethe as selfless and nurturing and Oedipus is characterized as a smart man who cares for the city of Thebes and who thought he was invincible) are incorporated into the discussion.
Organization	Maintains the focus established by the critical lens on the consequences that ensued as a result of characters' actions. The response exhibits a logical and coherent structure, introducing the characters for each work (Halle and Sethe and a character named Oedipus), then reviewing the cost of each character's action (Halle had to exert hundreds of hours of grueling effort and flee the city), and concluding with a refocus on the price each paid. Transitions are skillfully used (Through various life experiences, Following horrific treatment, While many not all).
Language Use	Is stylistically sophisticated, using language that is precise and engaging (recount the horrors of bondage, unearths the consequences, Consumed with hubris), with a notable sense of voice and awareness of audience and purpose (Though Sethe's act was done out of unconditional love, she still faced the repercussions). The response varies structure and length of sentences to enhance meaning (This schoolteacher is brutal and sadistic).
Conventions	Demonstrates control of the conventions, exhibiting occasional errors in punctuation (Mr. Garner, however dies; eyes, and exiles; Laius, brings).
Conclusion: Ov conventions.	verall, the response best fits the criteria for Level 6, although it is somewhat weaker in

Anchor Paper - Question 28 - Level 5 - A

In all aspects of life, one must face consequences for wrongful actions. L.M. Montgomery stated, "... we pay a price for everything we get or take in this world..." This statement suggests that one's choices and actions always have yesults that can come back and affect the outcome of one's life. This idea is supported in the literary works The Great Gatsby and The Namesake, where the choices and actions of the Characters caused them great pain.

Montgomery's words especially ring true in F. Scott Fitzgerald's The Great Gatsby, a story of aman's unfailing love for a woman. This story finds tay Gatsby and Daisy Buchanan as lovers who reconnect after what Seems a lifetime. This reunion reignites old flames and Jay, who has become wealthy through illegal means, wins Daisy back, despite the fact she has married into "high society". Jay thinks that Daisy will leave her rich lifestyle but he is wrong. Fitzgerald uses Characterization to Show how Daisy is obscassed with social status and wealth, two vices that are more important to her than love. Her cowardliness, leading her to choose security over love, eventually leads to Gatsby's downfall. Not long after Daisy chooses her husband Tom over Gatsby, Gatsby is shot dead. Her choice and the effect it had on Gatsby, reinforce the themethat every decision has its consequences. Daisy loses the man she truly loves for a lifestyle that will soon fade. She pays a price for status and wealth, taking more than she deserved.

This theme is also present in The Namesake by Thumpa Lahiris which tells of the journey of an Indian named Gogol living in America with his family. His journey is filled with discrimination and isolation, causing Gogol to be ashamed of being raised in these his native culture while growing up in America. Under these conditions, this setting shows how he is uncomfortable and feels as if he doesn't belong. As the years go by, grows more and more distant from his family and his ethnic moots. Thus, it comes as a terrible surprise when he finds out his father is dead. As a result, Gogol pays the price of being ashamed of his family and culture. The father who truly loved him is dead and Gogol will never be able to form a relationship with him. He now lives with the pain and regret for a life he wished he had apreciated. In this world, one must face the results of their Choices and actions. These two works show how both Daisy and Gogol "pay the price" Insubortanthanthanthatuthermin losing Someone they love for what they think they want from the world. This should be a reminder to us that the Course of life is always changing, so the people and the little things in our lives must be apreciated before it is too late.

	The response:
Meaning	Provides a thoughtful interpretation of the critical lens that clearly establishes the criteria for analysis (This means that all of our actions have consequences, and all of our actions have a reaction). The response uses the criteria to make a clear and reasoned analysis of The Scarlet Letter (Dimmesdale payed the ultimate price with his life) and Of Mice and Men (making the price George must pay for Lenny's actions that much greater).
Development	Develops ideas clearly and consistently, with reference to relevant and specific evidence from The Scarlet Letter (Dimmesale is driven mad, and internally tourtured for the guilt he feels) and Of Mice and Men (George ends up killing him, before the mob can get to him) . The response integrates references to setting (Puritan community, where punishments are severe and great depression , when there was a scarcity of everything) and characterization (Dimmesdale feels so guilty and George is his friend who takes care of him) to elaborate on the discussion of consequences.
Organization	Maintains the focus established by the critical lens (every action we make has a reaction). The response exhibits a logical sequence of ideas, first interpreting the critical lens, then presenting situations faced by characters in each work and consequences they faced as a result, and concluding with a return to the lens and its interpretation. Coherence is strengthened through the appropriate use of transitions (Even though Dimmesdale did not publicly pay and This is true).
Language Use	Uses language that is fluent and original, with evident awareness of audience and purpose (where the people are supposedly pious, and the punishments and The feeling of desperation hangs over the book). The response varies structure and length of sentences to control rhythm and pacing (Hester's lover, Arthur Dimmesdale, also takes part in this act of adultry, but he faces punishment, and pays his price, in a different way).
Conventions	Demonstrates control of the conventions, exhibiting occasional errors in spelling (adultry and tourtured), punctuation (Letter, and and greater. Especially), and capitalization (great depression).
Conclusion: Overall, the response best fits the criteria for Level 5 in all qualities.

	The response:
Meaning	Provides a thoughtful interpretation of the critical lens that clearly establishes the criteria for analysis (Every action taken causes a response, no matter how insignificant it may seem). The response uses the criteria to make a clear and reasoned analysis of Macbeth (Macbeth shows exactly how much a person can pay for taking what they want from the world) and The Great Gatsby that also shows the effects of going after what a person desires.
Development	Develops ideas clearly and consistently, with reference to relevant and specific evidence from both texts (Lady Macbeth is further characterized at the end of the work when she is sleepwalking and working fruitlessly to wash a spot off her hands and Jay Gatsby, a once poor soldier meets Daisy before he goes to Europe). The response integrates references to irony (which is ironic because and ironically robs Gasby), to illustrate the consequences faced by each character, and theme (The themes and motif's show how much of a price the murder had on Macbeth and Lady Macbeth's sanity and Romanticising the past is a major theme).
Organization	Maintains the focus established by the critical lens on the idea that money and power did not buy them happiness only more desires and problems. The response exhibits a logical sequence of ideas, moving from an interpretation of and agreement with the lens to a discussion of how the themes in each work reflect the price characters paid for choices they made, and concluding with a summation. Coherence is strengthened through the use of appropriate transitions (particularly in the case, When he returns, Both clearly prove).
Language Use	Uses language that is fluent and original (he becomes entwined within the drama of Gatsby, the Buchanons, and the Wilsons and sees how wealth affected their lives), with evident awareness of audience and purpose (It is well known that for every action, there is a reaction). The response varies structure and length of sentences to control rhythm and pacing (In the end, he sees that he must move forward in his life and move back west, but Gatsby, his foil, never sees this and remains living in his backwards life looking towards the past).
Conventions	Demonstrates partial control, exhibiting occasional errors in spelling (trone, plaigued, persuit), punctuation (both character's sleeping patterns and happiness, quite), and grammar (underlied and money and power it) that do not hinder comprehension.

	The response:
Meaning	Provides a thoughtful interpretation of the critical lens that clearly establishes the criteria for analysis (I believe people can approach life in many ways, but every decision we make to obtain something can change our lives). The response uses the criteria to make a clear and reasoned analysis of Macbeth (This decision would change his life forever) and Lord of the Flies (When Jack turns on Ralph he made that choice).
Development	Develops some ideas more fully than others. The response uses specific and relevant details from the text to describe Macbeth's decision to take the throne by murdering King Duncan and incorporating resultant elements of Macbeth's character change into the discussion (he could not live with himself, was haunted by ghosts, ended up killing those who were closest to him). The discussion of Lord of the Flies is less specifically developed, relying more on generalized statements of plot.
Organization	Maintains a clear and appropriate focus on the idea that what you get in life is based on choices you make). The response exhibits a logical sequence of ideas, first interpreting the lens, then presenting information to show how characters within each work are affected by their decisions, and ending with a reiteration of the lens. Internal consistency is weakened in paragraph 2, by an abrupt shift from a discussion of character to a single statement about theme, and then a return to the previous discussion of character.
Language Use	Uses appropriate language, with some awareness of audience and purpose (This book supports Montgomery's quote because these boys paid a price). The response occasionally makes effective use of sentence structure and length (Macbeth is given information that one day he will be king).
Conventions	Demonstrates partial control, exhibiting occasional errors in spelling (Shakespere, civilised, dieing) and punctuation (said "We; ghosts, and ended up; becomes savage he) that do not hinder comprehension.

-	The response:
Meaning	Provides a reasonable interpretation of the critical lens that establishes the criteria for analysis (nothing is ever given to us in our world. We have to work for what we get). The response makes implicit connections between the criteria and "The Necklace" (She thought the necklace she borrowed was real, so to replace it, she had to spend the rest of her life paying it back) and superficial connections to The Color of Water (a boy works hard to make something of himself).
Development	Develops some ideas more fully than others. The response uses specific and relevant details from
	The Color of Water to characterize McBride and his hardships in life (one of eleven brothers and sisters, racial differences caused him difficulties, family is extremely poor). Discussion of "The Necklace" is less specifically developed, relying more on plot summary.
Organization	Maintains a clear and appropriate focus on the concept that nothing is just given to you. The response exhibits a logical sequence of ideas beginning with an interpretation of the lens, followed by supporting information from each work, and ending with a summary conclusion. Internal consistency is weakened by an unconnected statement in paragraph 3 (she was very greedy) and the presentation of several loosely related ideas in paragraph 5.
Language Use	Uses appropriate language (This concept can be applied to two works of literature) that is sometimes repetitive (pay the price, paying it back, pay the price for what she took), with some awareness of audience and purpose (nothing good is ever just handed to you). The response occasionally makes effective use of sentence length (You have to work for it).
Conventions	Demonstrates partial control, exhibiting occasional errors in punctuation (she took, she was; family and; hard times, but) and usage (He had to learn to work for what he gets and Their family is but his mom seemed) that do not hinder comprehension.

·	The response:
Meaning	Provides a simple interpretation of the critical lens by agreeing with it (This is true because this can be seen in Romeo and Juliet, as well Hamlet). The response makes superficial connections between the criteria and Romeo and Juliet (This quote comes into effect right after the climax which was the wedding) and Hamlet (When Hamlet found out what happened he wanted revenge which shows how the quote comes in) .
Development	Develops ideas briefly, using some evidence from Romeo and Juliet (a play that held the story of families feuding and Romeo a Montague falls in love with Juliet a Capulet) and from Hamlet (This story has to do with a man who has killed his brother to become king and now his nephew hamlet is enraged). The response relies primarily on plot summary and on general statements which are not supported (because them getting married caused death and secrets).
Organization	Establishes an appropriate focus on the application of the quote to the chosen texts (In the end both works of literature portrayed this quote very well). The response exhibits a rudimentary structure with an introduction, a separate paragraph for each work, and a one-sentence conclusion.
Language Use	Uses appropriate language (this quote goes perfectly with these two tragedies) that is sometimes unsuitable for the audience and purpose (This statement screams Hamlet and the quote comes in). The response occasionally makes effective use of sentence structure and length (Romeo and Juliet was a story that was filled with lessons but not many were as pronounced as this statement).
Conventions	Demonstrates partial control, exhibiting occasional errors in punctuation (said "we; themes, this; lessons but) and grammar (this cause, because them getting, both works had an outcome) that do not hinder comprehension.
Conclusion: Ove	erall, the response best fits the criteria for Level 3, although it is somewhat stronger in

The response makes superficial connections between the criteria and The Outsiders (Some of the sacrafices done by ponyboy and Johnny was killing the opisut gang member). The critical lens is not used to analyze The Great Gatsby .
Development	Develops ideas briefly, using some evidence from The Outsiders (Johnny killed him because he was killing his friend ponyboy and he sacraficed his life for ponyboy). The response relies on a brief plot summary for The Great Gatsby .
Organization	Establishes an appropriate focus on sacrifices. The response exhibits a rudimentary structure, first defining and agreeing with the quote, then addressing the sacrifices made by Ponyboy and Johnny, followed by a synopsis of Gatsby's pursuit of Daisy, and concluding with a reiteration of the quote.
Language Use	Relies on basic vocabulary (They end up, cops cant find, a bunch of school kids) that is sometimes imprecise (explained two pieces of work and the following pieces), with little awareness of audience or purpose. The response exhibits some attempt to vary sentence structure and length for effect, but with uneven success (The husband of that woman wants revenge and Gastby ended getting blamed then killed for the woman he loved).
Conventions	Demonstrates emerging control, exhibiting occasional errors in spelling (Gastby, opisate, diffent), punctuation (Hinton, and; run away they; back but), and grammar (This mean, main character have, Some was) that hinder comprehension.

The response makes superficial connections between the criteria and Of Mice and Men (once you Take something on an emotinal Level you can never get back to the same way) and The Crucible (when you Take somebody's innocents it effects the whole Town).
Development	Is incomplete and largely undeveloped. The response hints at the idea that the taking of a person's innocence or life has a major effect on the world, but references to the texts are vague (Lenny Take the Life of People, and goeorge Take the inocents from Lenny and she wanted him so Bad she was willing to murder inocent People).
Organization	Establishes an appropriate focus on the effect of what we Take from this world . The response exhibits a rudimentary structure, first addressing the quote, then supplying a separate paragraph for each text, and finally providing a one-sentence conclusion.
Language Use	Relies on basic vocabulary that is sometimes imprecise (effect for "affect," it inflecues your directly, to for "too"), with little awareness of audience or purpose. The response attempts to vary sentence structure and length for effect, but with uneven success (another peice of literaucter is "The Crucible" this shows how when you Take somebody's innocents it effects the whole Town).

It happens often that we have to compensate for our actions. whether good or bad. When one becomes a doctor they have to then help their patients or when one robs a bank they have to pay and are put in jail, therefore when L.M. Montgomery states, "... we pay a price for everything we get or take in this world ... ", he is correct. In Nathoniel Hawthorne's allegorical romance. The Scarlet Letter, Hester is punished publicly for committing adultery. In onether instance, Huck Finn is punished for not understanding the importance of Jim's role in his life, in Mark Twain's buildungsramon, Adventures of Huckleberry Finn. In both novels, the characters have to pay for their actions. In the Puritan community, religion is the law, and those who go against are randermed. Hester Prynne is an odultress who is held upon the scaffold as an effort to make her realize and repent for her sin. In her position, she must pay for the shame she nos placed on the Puritons and is exiled from the religious community. By sharing a relationship with the mon she loves she must bear the letter A on her a chest as a form of punishment she also pays for hiding the identity of the father of her child with further embarassment. Most of all, Hester paid a price for what she took from the world, her daughter Pearl. Hester's payment for Pearl is the fact that no one regards her child a pias and calls her on "imp of evil", because her birth was unethical. In this novel, Hester must not only pay for her actions but pay for the child she raises; all in order to prove that she is good Huck Finn's higgest mistake, in the eyes of the southerners, was running away with a black "slave"

Throughout the novel Prophis Jim is referred to as a slave when he was actually freed in Miss watson's will, all in order to prove that a slave with always be band by societies wills. When Jim is captured in the Phelp's form thick must go against alloads to try and free him. Huck's best friend Tom Sawyer helps try and free Jim Paus but with the use of odd methods, like digging Jim out, all in order to have on "adventure". In his prignt to liberate Jim, Huck pays for not understanding Jim's fatherly role when Jim is seperated from Him. Huck must also pay for not understanding that his best friend, Tom, is a selfish person who harms others for an adventure. Jim has been the father figure for thuck, whose father is the town drunkard a only wonts thuck for his money. Hucklerberry Finn must pay the price for not knowing holding on to Jim, and free Jim on his own. Both The Scarlet Letter and Adventures of Huckleherry Finn hold characters that make decisions they must pay for Hester must pay for her sin and Huck must pay for losing Jim. Montgomery was right in proclaiming that people must compensate for what they recieve a

Question 28 - Practice Paper - C

L.M. Montgomery said "... he pay a price for everything we get or take in this world. " Each of our actions has a consequence. Whether it be minor or dire, there is always a price to pay when we make a choice. In The Picture of Brian Gray by Oscar Wilde, the simple desire to stay young changes the protagonist's life forever. In The Things They Corried by Tim O'Brien, defending uponself and fighting for your country can take a strong emotional toll on someone. As exhibited in the novels The Picture of Dorian Gray by Oscar Wilde and The Things They Corried by Tim O'Brien, we do indeed pay a price for everything that we get or take in this world. The Picture of Dorien Gray is a novel about a man who makes a deal with the 'devil' that gives him the ability to stay young and gargeous forever. Dorian Gray was a man who was known for being the most handsome and youthful man around and would do anything to keep that title. He made a barter that allowed = him to keep his same young appearence while a portrait of him aged instead. For Although this seemed to be what he wanted, because he could not die, he grew to be lonely. Everyone that he knews got old and eventually died while he was doomed to exist, & unchanging, forever. The degine to be perfect led to a life filled with loneliness and abandonment. Everyone would always leave him eventually, whether he liked it or not. Getting your wish of eternal life and benuty has the dire consequence of leaving you on your own for good. The Things They Cornied talks about "soldiers fighting during the Vietnam War. Some soldiers were drafted into the military to fight for their country and could only bring a few items to corry with them as reminders of being connected to their old lives. What they weren't prepared for was the emotional load that they would have to endure. Tim O'Brien had the opportunity to fight for his country and kill those who were reason; but what if your "right reason" is wrong? Tim O'Brien had to deal with reliving the morders everyday during the war and feel guilty that maybe it was an in but had to deal withe the emotional pain that went along with it. There are always consequences to when fighting for what you are told to fight for, and more often then not, the one who knows the least most pay the price.

Everything cove do has a consequence. Whether it be serious or anticlimatic, we must always pay a price for the cards that we have been dealt. The Picture of Parisa Gray by Oscar Wilde and For The Things They Carried by Tim O'Brien both exacompass L.M. Montgowery's idea that we pay a price for everything core get or take in this world.
